

U.S. Raiders Carry Off Canada's Missile-Age Brains

OTTAWA (CP)—Exodus of hundreds of Canadian electronics and missile engineers to the United States has begun, industry sources said Tuesday.

One authority said there isn't a doubt that Canada will lose hundreds of these men to the U.S.

Earlier this month, Dr. Norman A. MacKenzie, president of the University of British Columbia, said Canada's defence policy might force some of the country's "best brains" to turn to the U.S. for employment.

"The best and most adventurous of those engaged in the labor force will be more likely to find suitable employment at Boeing in Seattle than at Avro in Toronto," he said.

The government last month killed two major Canadian defence projects, the Sparrow air-to-air missile and the Astra receptor. It postponed until March a final decision on whether to put the Arrow into limited production.

Spokesmen for industries affected said the government decision was a heavy blow. This had been followed swiftly by another blow: manpower

Officials of several companies said American firms have sent teams into Toronto, Montreal, Hamilton, Ottawa and other centres to recruit Canadian engineers and technicians.

One authority said the Canadian companies are finding it almost impossible to hang onto their training and experience in electronics and missiles.

They said the government has announced it hopes to work out production-sharing between American and Canadian industry in the defence field.

But, they said, there was little prospect of this until American handle, and U.S. industry had not reached this point.

Canadian companies with parent firms in the U.S. have started transferring personnel to U.S. plants.

Firms hardest hit include RCA, Canadian Westinghouse, Canadianair Limited, Computing

Pressing Issues

World Hails Pope

ROME (Reuters) — World leaders sent congratulations to the new Pope Tuesday night. (See stories, picture on page 3.)

Queen Elizabeth, Premier de Gaulle of France and West German President Theodor Heuss were among those sending messages to Cardinal Roncalli upon his selection.

Moscow Radio's English-language service reported the election without comment.

EXALTED DUTIES

Queen Elizabeth said: "I should like to express to Your Holiness my warm congratulations on your election and to send you my best wishes for your health and welfare in the discharge of the exalted duties to which you have been called."

President Eisenhower sent this message: "My best wishes for the success of your endeavors are, I am certain, shared by men of good will everywhere."

KNEEL IN PRAYER

The 1,773 inhabitants of Sotto Il Monte, where the Pope was born Nov. 25, 1881, rejoiced in the village square at the news, then knelt in prayer on the cobblestones.

Pope John's three brothers, who still live in Sotto Il Monte, went to the parish church to pray for their illustrious brother.

MANY PROBLEMS

A host of major problems face the new Pope.

They range from the pressure of Communism to appointments — of 16 cardinals, of senior officials in an urgently-needed overhaul of the central church government and of clergy to meet a grave shortage in the church's far-flung realm.

He must fight apathy in the church in Italy and increase the campaign against social injustice everywhere. A friendly man who likes to meet people, he must adjust to the awesome loneliness of the Papacy.

Record Flight Wings Philip To Ottawa

OTTAWA (UPI) — A Comet jet airliner brought Prince Philip here for a three-day visit in a record westbound flight time of 8 hours, 3 minutes.

He was met at the foot of the gangway by Gov. Gen. Vincent Massey and acting prime minister Howard Green.

Dangers of trees plus ropes plus TV-inspired "games" are explained to Deborah, 4, and Anthony, 5, children of Mrs. Bette Lowe, 631 Raynor, Victoria.

Children 'Hang' Brother, Sister

By BRUD DELANY

A 36-year-old Victoria West mother was quietly working in her garden when she heard screams of terror from across the street.

Panic-stricken because she knew her four-year-old daughter Deborah was playing over there, Mrs. Bette Lowe, 631 Raynor, stood up to look.

What she saw set her running frantically across the street.

SWINGING BY NECK

Debbie was hanging a foot off the ground, swinging by the neck from a rope thrown over a boulevard tree.

Hanging onto the other end of the rope were about seven children, ranging from four to eight years old. When they saw the desperate mother approaching, they let go of the rope.

The little girl lay there, her eyes protruding and screams just barely escaping from her cruelly pinched neck. Trembling and nearly screaming with horror herself, Mrs. Lowe freed Debbie and carried her home.

THIRD TIME

This happened last Saturday afternoon. It was the third such incident concerning her children in the past month.

The story was related to the Colonist yesterday by the still shaken Mrs. Lowe, an attractive mother of six.

She said she wanted the matter given publicity so other parents could warn their children.

"I don't want to wait until it's too late and one of my children, or some other mother's child, is strangled to death," she said.

Victim in the other two "hangings" was five-year-old Anthony, a shy, handsome little boy.

"I never actually saw Tony while he was hanging, thank goodness," Mrs. Lowe said. "But there was no doubt each time what had happened."

BARELY SWALLOW

"The rope burns were awful and the poor little fellow was scared to death. He could barely swallow for a week."

"The first time it happened—about a month ago—Mrs. Lowe was standing in her kitchen when Tony came in from outside and just stood inside the door."

"His face was white and he was trembling—a badly frightened

Car Salesman

Thugs Slug Talker

VANCOUVER (CP)—A used-car salesman said Monday three men savagely attacked him after accusing him of supplying information for a newspaper expose on the operations of Vancouver used-car dealers.

Morely Jameson, 38, said the trio pummeled him with their fists, kicked him and struck him with a pick handle. One of them carried a gun. Mr. Jameson was warned that if he went to police both his legs would be broken and all the windows of cars in his lot smashed.

The Vancouver Sun had quoted police and Better Business Bureau officials as saying five to 10 per cent of used-car dealers here are downright dishonest and another 20 per cent operate on the fringe of the law.

The articles also described methods in which car buyers were allegedly gypped.

Laurels Given To Canadians

MONTREAL (UPI) — Dr. Peter Millman of the National Research Council said last night that on a per capita basis, Canadians were playing a greater part in the International Geophysical Year than at any other nation in the world.

Canadian activities in "the most outstanding scientific effort ever undertaken on the earth" included aurora borealis research and meteor counting, Millman continued.

Woman Prospector Hits Town

With pick and shovel at the ready, B.C.'s leading woman prospector stormed the legislative buildings yesterday looking for a better deal for B.C.'s independent prospectors, whom she said are getting a raw deal under this province's new amendments to the Mining Act. See story on page 2.—(Colonist photo.)

Policeman Taken For Terror Ride

Forest Loss Cost Equals Small Navy

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — More than $70,000,000 — enough money to build a small navy — was lost through forest fires in northern B.C. this summer, forest officials here said.

SEATTLE (AP)—For 13 terrifying blocks, a young Seattle policeman clung yesterday to the outside of a speeding car whose woman driver had slammed her window shut on his right arm.

Patrolman Harold Countryman said later from his hospital bed the car hit speeds as high as 70 miles an hour and veered from side to side as it raced through a series of traffic lights.

The motorist, Mrs. Gracie Shippey, 48, was jailed on charges of drunken and reckless driving.

Mrs. Shippey denied she had driven off with Countryman pinned to her car, adding "Anyhow I didn't know he was a policeman." Countryman was in uniform.

Mrs. Shippey operated a lonely hearts club at her home. Countryman, who escaped serious injury, said he tried three times to shoot a hole in the left front tire of the car and then decided to "ride it out."

During the weird, erratic chase he hung on the side of the car with his elbow hooked over the raised window and his feet lifted off the ground.

Mrs. Shippey was finally stopped when Countryman's patrol car partner overtook them and forced the speeding automobile to the curb.

Countryman freed his arm by smashing the window with his pistol butt.

Charge Given To Jury

VANCOUVER (CP) — The presiding judge in the Sommers bribery-conspiracy trial told the jury Tuesday they should rightly consider the "unusual way" in which moneys were passed to a former minister of the Crown.

Recounting the evidence in the lengthy trial, Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson noted several times that moneys passed to former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers were either in cash or in bonds. The Crown claims the funds were bribes for use of Sommers' influence in the issuance of forest management licences; the defence claims they were innocent loans.

CONSPICUOUS LACK

Mr. Justice Wilson observed that there was "a rather conspicuous lack of the use of cheques" — which would provide a record — in making advances to Sommers. There also was a lack of correspondence between Sommers and president H. W. Gray of Pacific Coast Services Limited about the loans Sommers claims he obtained from Gray as a friend.

$30,000 BRIBE

The justice also made two references to previous testimony that a forest management licence issued to B.C. Forest Products in 1955 was issued after Sommers conferred with Premier Bennett. The Crown charges that B.C. Forest paid a $30,000 bribe for this licence. "If he (Sommers) is responsible here," Mr. Justice Wilson said, "He cannot escape by reason of the fact that he improperly accepted direction by the premier."

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

A NEWSPAPERMAN by the name of Wallace Reyburn writes an entertaining column from London, England, for some Canadian newspapers. I forget which papers they are, off-hand.

There's only one thing I don't like about Mr. Reyburn's work. In his zeal to please and flatter Canadian readers, he sometimes forgets the facts.

A while ago he was commenting on a survey which showed the average Englishwoman to be short and dumpy. He expressed confidence that the average Canadian woman was far more shapely.

If he had consulted a parallel survey taken in this country, he would have found that the typical Canadian girl was dumper and thicker in the waist than her English counterpart.

Recently he made some remarks about unsightly British television aerials, and put forward the opinion that Canada, being so much more advanced than old creaky Britain, must surely have evolved a neater, more streamlined aerial by now.

But if he had only known, our aerials are just as jagged and unsightly as ever. And "backward" Britain had a working television service before the 1939-45 war, when television in North America was still in the experimental stage.

I know what Mr. Reyburn's game is. He is trying to ingratiate himself with Canadian audiences by appealing to their sense of superiority. But he should keep more closely in touch with events in this country.

If I am correctly informed, there is a good reason why Mr. Reyburn sometimes fumbles the job of being a Canadian overseas, covering events in fusty, outdated old Britain. He isn't a Canadian. He's a New Zealander.

"What's that, Granddaddy?" a small Victoria girl asked, pointing to the "Buy Happiness" button on her grandfather's coat.

Grandfather explained about the Community Chest and the people who were going through hard times. "It's to buy happiness for them and for the people who give the money," he said.

The little girl ran and fetched her coin bank, and dumped out its whole contents, 29 cents.

"Are you getting lots of happiness money?" she asked when her grandfather came back next week. Grandfather said they had quite a few thousand dollars, but they still needed more. She cleaned out her bank again. This time it was 72 cents.

"If all our donors followed the little girl's example, we'd have no worries," my informant said. "She gave everything she had."

U.S., Canada Need Each Other

'Satellite' Defence Policy? Nonsense, Snorts Pearkes

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Pearkes Tuesday termed "nonsense" the criticism of Canadian defence policy voiced Monday night by Maj. Gen. W. H. S. Macklin, former army adjutant-general.

"General Macklin just doesn't make any sense," Mr. Pearkes told reporters.

In a biting speech to Young Progressive Conservative Association here, Gen. Macklin had said Canada's defence policy has made this country a "satellite" of the United States and the RCAF a "handmaiden" of the USAF.

Mr. Pearkes said the general "fails to realize that the defence of continental North America cannot be mounted by either Canada or the U.S. alone."

"The U.S. needs our bases and air space and we need the help of U.S. financing," Mr. Pearkes said. "So this makes continental defence a partnership. Canada was "a full-scale partner, never a satellite."

Two-Party 'Conspiracy' Hiding Defence Facts

SANGUDO, Alta. (CP)—Hazen Argue, CCF Commons leader, called Tuesday night for a parliamentary inquiry into Canada's whole defence structure.

In a public address here he accused the Progressive Conservative government and the official Liberal opposition of "conspiracy" at the last session of Parliament to frustrate such an inquiry.

An inquiry was needed to bring out the true facts about the country's defences.

"For too long," Mr. Argue said, "our government has sought to conceal its policy of futility behind a veil of security."

At the last session the government and Liberal forces had refused to hear such military critics of Canada's defence policy as Maj. Gen. W. H. S. Macklin, former adjutant-general, and Lt. Gen. Guy Simonds, former chief of the general staff.

Industrial, traffic and community section chairman will report to the annual meeting of the Greater Victoria and District Safety Council at 8 p.m. in the Flame Room of the B.C. Electric building. . . all ethnic groups and individuals are invited to attend a general meeting of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Folk Society at 8.15 p.m. at the Academy of Ballroom Dancing, 1012 Douglas. . . Kipling Society, Victoria branch, meets at 8 p.m. at 317 Cook escape. A warning was issued in the neighborhood about the dangers of playing with rope in such games as "cowboys and Indians."

Television is responsible for such terrifying incidents, says the distraught mother, "HORRIBLE IDEAS"

"The worst children seem to watch it all the time," she said, "and they get some horrible ideas from it."

"There are parents who seem to have lost all control of their children. A few of these kids are monsters."

Mrs. Lowe fervently hopes that "something can be done about all this."

"I hope that this shocking story will scare other parents into doing something," she said.

For Prospecting Rights

Woman Leads Second Fight

Pat Ravey, British Columbia's mineral claims and gave Ravey discretionary powers in the leading woman prospector, arrived in Victoria yesterday to continue her fight against what she describes as the provincial government's plan to take away the rights of independent prospectors.

In April, 1957, she led prospectors in protests against the passing of amendments to the Mineral Act which she says did away with crown grants on the fight.

"The mineral resources of B.C. are fantastic," she said. "If the independent prospectors are allowed to operate in a normal fashion without having to make concessions to special interests, new finds would be made and old ones reactivated."

"I am wholeheartedly opposed to Wenner-Grenland," she said. "Why should they be granted concessions our own miners, including some of our own larger companies could never get?"

Miss Ravey comes by her interest in mining honestly. Her father, the late Martin Ravey, was a pioneer B.C. miner who made and lost two fortunes.

"Most of my claims have now gone beyond the prospecting stage," she said. "I hope to get a mine started soon."

POPE JOHN XXIII

Farmer's Son 262nd Pontiff

'Twilight Pope' Named

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Angelo Giuseppe Cardinal Roncalli of Venice, son of an Italian shoemaker, yesterday was elected 262nd Pope of the Roman Catholic Church. The 76-year-old prelate chose the title Pope John XXIII.

His election by the 51 Cardinals seated in the Sistine Chapel came either on the 11th or 12th day of the month, when the lock over the choice of a spiritual leader of the world's nearly half-billion Catholics.

Vatican sources said the new Pope probably would be crowned in St. Peter's Basilica on Nov. 9.

The new Pontiff is the opposite of his predecessor, a member of Roman nobility and a "political Pope" who stressed material and diplomatic affairs. Cardinal Roncalli is expected to be a "pastoral" Pope—one who will concentrate on the spiritual workings of the church and on the basic tenets of the faith. The elderly Venetian patriarch, a Cardinal since Jan. 12, 1953, had been one of the pre-conclave favorites to become a "twilight Pope"—a man who could reorganize Church mechanisms, call a consistory to elect new members to the sadly-depleted College of Cardinals, and yet not have a lengthy reign.

Long-awaited plume of white smoke finally came from the chapel stovepipe at 5:07 p.m. (7:07 a.m. PST), but the crowd of 250,000 persons in St. Peter's Square was quiet until the Pope was named.

Roars of "Viva Il Papa" ended at 6:17 when the Pope appeared.

He raised his arms in the gesture of blessing and intoned: "May the blessings of God and Father, Son, and Holy Ghost be yours always."

Second John XXIII Picks Popular Name

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The name Pope John XXIII chosen by the new Pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church has been used before in the turbulent days of the Renaissance. The previous John XXIII is regarded by most Catholic historians as an anti-Pope. He reigned from 1410 to 1415, in an age when there was a wide split between church factions.

The name John is the most popular in the 2,000-year history of the Papacy.

'He Always Sees The Good Side'

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—"Traveller of God"—"Fully a Pastor"—"A man who always sees the good side of things." Those are a few of the descriptions used by those who know the new Pope, elevated from Angelo Giuseppe Cardinal Roncalli.

He has served 27 years as a successful Vatican diplomat.

It is said he was always a bishop at heart and when the late Pope Pius XII created him a Cardinal in 1953 he was less thrilled by the Cardinal's role than by the chance to devote himself at last to episcopal work.

"I am convinced that the ministry of the pastor is the most fascinating, the finest that a man can be offered in his life," he said.

DIFFICULT POST

It was his openness and joviality that earned success in one of the most difficult posts in Vatican diplomatic history—Nuncio to Paris when the post-war French remembered the Vatican had maintained relations with the Petain government. When he left the post in 1953 after eight years, Franco-Vatican relations were excellent.

A learned, historian and art lover who speaks five languages, he was born Nov. 25, 1881, in the village of Sotto Il Monte about 40 miles east of Milan, the third of 13 children of John Roncalli. One of his sisters and two of his brothers still live on the family farm.

VARIED CAREER

During an unsensational church career, he started the practice of publishing parish news bulletins, founded church "students' homes," was active in developing the Catholic Action Movement into a powerful force and taught church history, apologetics and patristics. As a young priest, one of his best friends was Msgr. Achille Ratti, who later became Pope Pius XI.

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors Corp. Tuesday reported a net profit of $65,633,266 for this year's third quarter, compared with $122,175,621 for the same period in 1957.

The Dilemma of Defence

THE former adjutant-general of the Canadian Arm., Major-General W. H. S. Macklin, says Canada is becoming a military satellite of the United States. Similar fears have been expressed in other directions, as for instance regarding economics, trade and social influences. This country will always have a difficult task in keeping to itself an independent way of life because of the nearness of its richer and more powerful neighbor to the south.

General Macklin has been a consistent critic of Canadian military measures since he retired three years ago. That is his right, and indeed his duty if he feels that wrong defensive courses are being followed by the defence department. Because of his experience and knowledge his views also command respect, even if they do not necessarily represent the last word on the subject. It is one of the dilemmas that vex the government that top-ranking service chiefs, past and present, do not see eye to eye in the matter of armaments.

On balance, General Macklin is probably correct in his assessment of Canadian-U.S. military association. The truth is unpalatable, but it cannot be dismissed. There is no escape from the realization that this nation is tied irrevocably to its neighbor in the matter of defence, and since the preponderance of means and power is in the hands of the U.S. this country must play second fiddle to American aims and strategy. It cannot be neutral, it does not have the money to underwrite an entirely separate military program, and it must therefore depend to a major degree on the strength of its neighbor. That involves a subordinate role, disturbing though this may be.

Decisions about the nature of service weapons are crucial in these days of swiftly changing concepts and because of the enormous costs entailed. No government is to be envied in making its choice; a task made much harder in view of the conflicting claims of each of the armed services and the differences of opinion that exist among its professional advisers. It is much easier to say that the RCAF is now of small military value and that the navy should have submarines, than that the army should have nuclear weapons, that a merchant marine should be re-created, that the aircraft industry should be reorganized and set to produce needed planes—as the general recommends—than to do all of these things.

Probably Canada could not accomplish them all in any case, even if it were to disregard costs entirely. Certainly it cannot begin to supply each service with the latest in weapons and equipment, and maintain the ceaseless change which every year brings, without an increase in taxation bordering on or even exceeding wartime levies. Politically no government would dream of this, and it is probably equally certain that the public is not in the mood for any such drastic action. The public will not be as convinced as General Macklin is that defensively Canada is in a parlous state, even though this conceivably could be true.

That is the situation that faces the government in determining what to do about all aspects of national defence. There is no alternative to a close alliance with the U.S.A.; the best that can be hoped is that America remains aware of Canadian sentiment and eases this country's subordinate position as much as possible.

Steep Price for Information

IN setting a price of $1 each for copies of the Deutsch report on amalgamation, the Victoria-Saanich municipal committee appears to be imbued with the profit motive, which is all wrong in a matter like this.

The issue affects every taxpayer in both municipalities. If a plebiscite is to be taken in December it is essential that the voters should be fully informed about what is involved. Those who wish to read the complete report should have every encouragement to do so and should not be expected to accept someone else's version of what it contains. No doubt there will be public meetings to explain the proposals, but if inquiring taxpayers are to be able to grasp the issue they should have access to the unabridged report either for nothing or for a nominal fee.

One dollar is an exorbitant price to charge for something which would cost no more than a fraction of that sum to produce. Various processes of reproduction of the 37-page report cheaply are available. Reliable estimates place the cost at approximately 20 cents a copy for lots of 5,000 or more, slightly more for smaller quantities. At the very outside, therefore, 25 cents would appear to be a fair price. Many people who might balk at a dollar—and rightly so in the circumstances—would be happy to pay a quarter for the complete text.

Why the committee should want to make 300 per cent profit out of a service which it is morally if not legally obligated to provide has not been explained. If the idea is to help defray the cost of a plebiscite, that is a peculiar way of doing it.

Need for Understanding

THE sensitive and finely written series of articles by G. E. Mortimore, of the Colonist, on Canada's native tribesmen has concluded after a comprehensive review of the subject under the imaginative title of "The Strangers." Of especial interest has been the direct, on-the-spot report of British Columbia Indians, both on reservations and those emerging into an independent life of their own. As Mr. Mortimore suggests, there is indeed need for better understanding of the mutual tasks of integration in the swiftly changing social and economic times of the day.

It is late in the day for Canada to see "strangers" in any of the human components of its richly diversified population. While old arguments of land titles and prior occupation rights are wearing thin, there remains the moral and sociological obligation to see to it that this ancient and proud people has as clear a way into full Canadian citizenship as any in the country. They surrendered much, and asked little. The years have not dealt kindly with them on the whole. Where that has been in part the result of their own inhibitions, there has perhaps been only little direct remedy. Where, however, it has been through official neglect or public misunderstanding of their difficulties, there surely is a solution.

Interpreting the News

New Regime in Thailand

By DAVID ROWNTREE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FOR a quarter of a century, the coup d'état has been the dominant way of political life in Thailand.

Governments rise and fall at the command of strong army men. There hasn't been any violence in the 26 years since Thailand, or Siam as it was then known, ceased to be an absolute monarchy following the first of 13 bloodless revolutions.

Until last year, the chief figure in Thai politics for 10 years was Phul Songgram, an army marshal. His undoing was to try to get his cabinet ministers to cut their connections with highly profitable business ventures.

Police Chief Phao Sriyanond is said to have made millions out of the opium trade, as well as in legitimate businesses. Army commander Sarit Thanarat had interests in about 30 lucrative companies and also is said to have taken a huge slice from the proceeds of the national lottery.

Songgram tried to end some of the corruption in high places that was worrying Thailand's friends. The country is a strong supporter of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, an American-inspired grouping similar to NATO, and it was embarrassing to have Thailand pointed out by the Chinese Communists as an example of the West's Allies in Asia.

Songgram could not override Phao and Sarit. Both resigned and in the resulting struggle for control behind the scenes, Sarit emerged as the strong man. He took over the government and sent Premier Songgram—and the police chief as well—out of the country.

Elections were held last December. A young army officer, Lt. Gen. Thanom Kittikachorn, was set up as a straw premier for Sarit, who went off to England and the U.S. for treatment of a liver complaint.

Sarit slipped home quietly last weekend, ready to take over the reins of government himself. The premier then submitted his resignation.

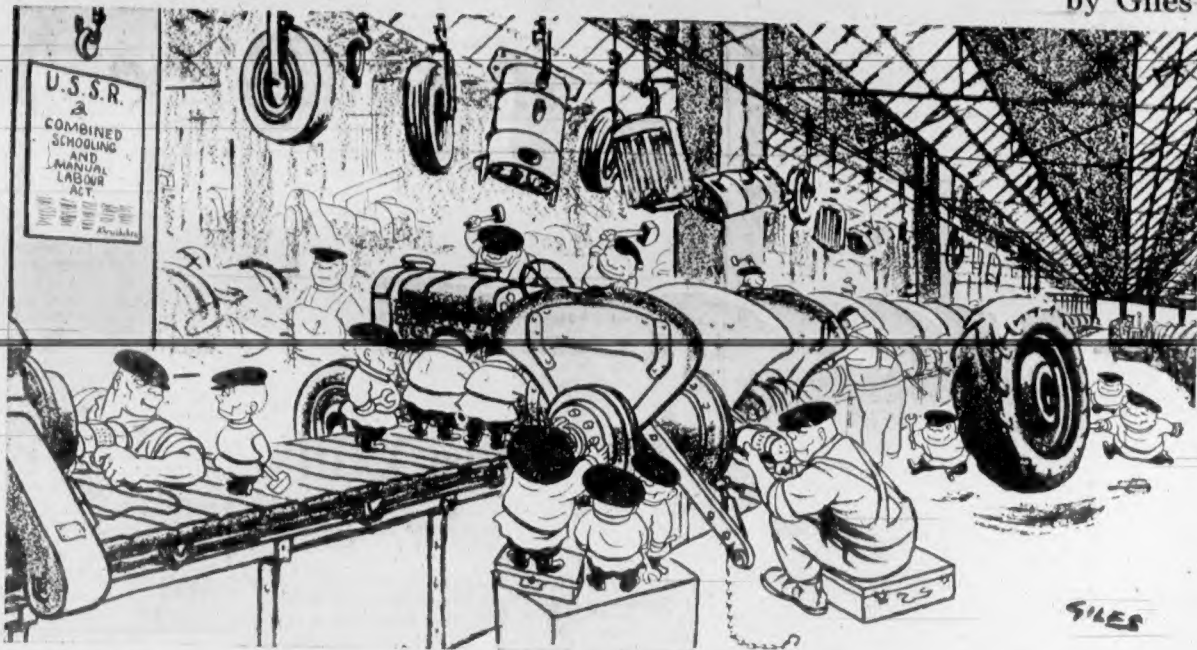

A few hours later the Thailand radio announced that Field Marshal Sarit as head of the so-called Revolutionary Party—it is made up of the army, navy, air force, police and government officials—had assumed control of the country "in the name of the people . . . because of pressure of internal and external forces, especially the Communists."

Last September, Sarit explained his removal of Songgram as also being "in the interests of the people."

Newspaper correspondents say the Thai people do not take much interest in politics and can have little influence on the generals' power plays. The Thais also seem amused by Sarit's European-style explanations for moves that appear designed to strengthen his political and financial position.

Thinking Aloud

Letter from London

"... of shoes—and ships—and sailing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

HE who pays the piper must always call the tune and if by turning a switch one is purveyed with entertainment, gratis, presumably one has no reason to complain. On the other hand the supposition is that the purveyors are bent on pleasing the listeners, which is not always quite so obvious.

Television has an enormous appetite and it swallows performers faster than they can adeptly be fashioned. Because it must keep up a continuous round, hour by hour and day by day—why must it, though?—the standard inevitably becomes downgraded. There are not enough good ideas, good artists, to keep all programs on the sparkling level of first-class entertainment. Understandably the quality is spiced with mediocrity.

In the realm of singing these days it is also ludicrous. This may reflect the age or merely the North American idiom, which has a moaning whine about it as vocalists expose their tonalities in endless and often nonsensical lyrics. Most of them are utterly cheerless, and can't sing properly into the bargain. The wonder grows every time you hear one of these facial contortions that they actually get paid for the sounds they emit.

There is constant wonder also on your truly's part about the rude interruptions in the name of commerce. This is an old argument and it has been settled by TV promoters ignoring objections on the subject. It is a case of take it or leave it, and, doubtless, they know well enough the watchers will take it, having no other but the drastic choice of shutting the machine off and thus cutting off their own noses, as it were. And except for the strong willed this is too severe a choice.

One becomes accustomed to being mentally suspended in mid-air half a dozen times during a play or any other kind of program, but the process can be exasperating nevertheless. From an artistic point of view it is inexcusable. Perhaps, however, the promoters are complimentary. They assume that the watchers have the capacity to hold to the theme in spite of the breaks, and this development does take place. One is forced to pay attention and not go to sleep, an occupational hazard of TV watching.

Radio seems to be following the pattern of its competing medium. In this realm too of course one had grown used to—commercialism—but the incidence of interruption is being expanded. Sometimes the break will last ten or 15 minutes while quite extraneous matter is introduced—news reports, announcements, spot scores, etc.—and it takes a supreme effort to get back into the mental groove most favorable to the program in question.

As television has grown in popularity and use radio has suffered a setback. Certainly the quality of radio fare in general is far below the level it held before TV screens invaded the homes and destroyed its monopoly. Perhaps radio is forced to copy its competitor or perhaps, not having so many listeners as formerly, the interruptions are not considered to matter. Radio, however, has one great advantage over TV which it seems to disregard; the listener is not hog-tied to the instrument of his entertainment. He can do other things while listening. That should be enough to spur radio to better standards than those into which it has lapsed.

Problems of the Rival Dollars

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

THE fruits of the Montreal economic conference are now being more closely examined. They look good, but there is no doubt that there is worm in some of the apples. The biggest worm is that a any good for Canada which may emerge from the Montreal discussions is also good for the United States. The trouble is, once again, the dollar.

Just as Americans regard their dollar as the dollar and get beside themselves when they find that it is at a discount in Canada, so the average Briton seems unable to appreciate that there are two dollar currencies. Thus any move for interchangeability affects both; any move for greater trade does not mean Canada but the "dollar area."

Thus it comes about that any dollar concessions apply equally to Canada and to the United States, which is not quite what most people expected. Relaxation in dollar availability gave a welcome boost to the British Columbia salmon packers, but it also means that American canners will benefit too. Any hope of substantial imports of B.C. apples has to be set against imports of Californian fruit.

In manufactures, of course, Canadian dollars have the added advantage of Commonwealth preference in import duties which does give some benefits denied to Americans, but the broad realization that in foodstuffs especially anything which benefits Canada also benefits America has caused a certain amount of misgiving.

There is also the fact that preferential duties are to a limited extent offset by the cheaper American dollar.

Economists argue that it is impossible to differentiate between the dollars unless Canada is prepared to introduce controls, which seems to be just about the last thing Canada would wish to do.

In any case it would be singularly futile at a time when the currency controllers are aiming at free convertibility of currencies. On the other hand it does give the United States most of the advantages of belonging to the Commonwealth Club without any of the responsibilities. When increased dollar allowances were suggested for tourists it was argued that a bigger allowance should be available for those going to Canada than to the United States. The idea is good but it would be administratively impossible.

It would mean that the government would dictate travel routes by insisting that those with the larger allowance travelled to Canada direct and not via the United States; but it could not prevent the traveller cashing his traveller's cheques and proceeding straight to the United States. There is no feasible way of segregating Canadian and American dollars except through unacceptable Canadian controls—and the only way to divert trade to Canada is through the tariff structure, which is ineffective in primary produce and foodstuffs.

The hope, of course, is that Canada will be able to under-cut the Americans and thus get a greater share of the business available; but Canada is not helped by the Canadian dollar premium. On the other hand it does help Canada to buy more cheaply from Britain.

The problem of getting Britain to buy more from Canada has not, however, been as effectively resolved as many people hoped at Montreal. In timber imports and the allied paper industry dollars have been available for necessary imports for several years, primary industries and foodstuffs will get some benefits but will have to share them with the United States, and the market for Canadian manufactured goods apart from food is not of substantial proportions.

Things may be better when complete convertibility is attained. It will allow greater capital investment in Canada—but it will also mean that similar concessions will be available in the United States. It will mean a greater tourist trade for Canada—but the benefits will have to be shared with the United States. It is, however, unlikely that there will be any tariff concessions in favor of America. They will still be the means whereby mutual benefits within the Commonwealth can be bestowed—although even this means is not without problems if the European free trade area comes into force.

Critics of the British government policy believe that it would have been better to work for a Commonwealth free trade area first; but it seems that too few governments were willing to sacrifice revenue tariffs, apart from possible effects on manufacturing industries in the dominions.

The Packsack

of GREGORY CLARK

SOME things happen to me that cannot possibly happen to any but an extremely few others. You know those little nickel-plated containers on restaurant and quick lunch tables which contain the paper napkins?

About twenty years ago, it occurred to me that I had never, in my previous experience, encountered one of these paper napkin dispensers that was partly full, half full, nearly full. They were always tight full. So full that, in order to get a paper napkin out of them, I had to twitch, twiddle and coax at them. And as a rule the napkin I got was torn in the process.

From that time on, I began to be conscious of paper napkin dispensers. I started to watch for a partly full one. And as the years passed, and as I ate in restaurants and quick lunches all over Canada, the United States, Europe and Ireland, I never found a single one that was not stuffed so full that it was next to impossible to extract a serviette.

Now it stands to reason that with thousands and millions of people eating in these establishments, and all helping themselves to paper napkins, I should sooner or later meet up with a partly empty dispenser.

But, no sir! Not so far.

This leads me to suspect that personal experience is a very narrow and specialized thing, not to be admitted at all in serious debate.

In Defence of Basements

(From The Portland Oregonian)

ONE cannot criticize very much the 102 housewives from all states of the Union who turned thumbs down on basement bomb shelters at the Congress on Baster Living held in Washington, D.C. When the children need shoes or the couch requires recovering, it hardly makes sense to spend a lot of money on a place to hide from a catastrophe which one "just can't believe will ever happen."

But that 35 per cent of the ladies should reject basements in toto and another 15 per cent show a don't-care attitude is open to criticism. Especially since more storage space was the "general cry" of the assembly, as the Associated Press put it.

Where do the feminine symposiasts think they will find more storage space in their favorite one-story, 2½-bathroom, picture-window house, if there is no basement? There is no attic, either, in such a house, and the garage is large enough only for the two cars, the power mower and a few cupboards containing the bare essentials of living.

The basement has done as much as the family-size farm to stabilize America. One really doesn't have one's roots down until one has collected three of four generations of memorabilia within the basement's musty confines.

There is the massive gilt frame which some day one hopes to hang in the den with a better looking picture in it than the one of Great Aunt Jennie it now contains. There is the crockery antedating the family's acquisition of inside plumbing. There are the trunks, boxes and cartons containing the unopened scrapbook material, yellowed clippings, report cards from the years 1912-24, baptism certificates, the sword Grandpa carried at Manila and all the other mileposts marking several generations' progress toward eternity.

Roots down, did we say? They're down so deep in the basement that it seems best to a lot of us to live out our days where we are and let the next generation move to the basementless, atticless ranch house.

Labor's Blindness

Recent articles in the paper indicate that labor generally in B.C. is girding its loins for a struggle against what they call "ganging up" by employers in B.C. to break the unions. I am sure that nothing is further from the truth.

The fact is that economics is at last overtaking the unions. Management has at last been forced to resist exorbitant labor demands because management is finding stiff consumer resistance to new high prices. The consumer can no longer pay the price demanded by labor. Witness the fact that the consumer can no longer engage building mechanics for necessary repairs to his house. It should be obvious to even the blindest unions what is really happening. Such blindness can only hasten the legislation that must be enacted to control and curb labor unions as big business was curbed in the early part of this century.

All fair-minded people are aware of the great contribution labor unions have made towards equity and stability in our modern society, but present-day conditions indicate that the unions have overdone it. We in B.C. are pricing ourselves out of the world market so necessary for continued employment of our people, and B.C. is fast becoming known as a plague spot to capital seeking locations for new industries, which are, of course, the only source of new employment.

M. P. PAINE.

Unmitigated Gall

So the B.C. Federation of Labor has the unmitigated gall to sue Mr. Bennett and the provincial government for doing their duty as representatives of the public depending on them to take action in unforeseen circumstances, such as the seizure of the Black Ball ferry when Vancouver Island was threatened with isolation and grievous financial loss, because certain employees with union affiliations demanded higher pay.

How long are the public going to stand for this challenge to their rights? Put labor unions in their place when they arrogate to themselves the right to dictate public policies and vital public issues.

Personally, I would like to congratulate Mr. Bennett and the Social Credit government for carrying out their plain duty.

Cathedral Conscience

We should not expect too much of a church: in this case Christ Church Cathedral involved in the growing pains of musical interpretation.

The cathedral cannot be more than sacred, nor less than human. If it is to remain in touch with its people, Music is one thing that lends itself to the secular and the divine, just as we ourselves to the temporal and the spiritual. And it would seem a matter for those in authority to decide the type of music and the manner of presentation most in keeping with the times.

No Place in Canada For 'Pessimistic' CCF

REGINA (UPI) — Northern affairs minister Alvin Hamilton charged yesterday that the socialist party had no place in Canada because it is based on the "disillusionment" of 19th century Europe.

Addressing the Saskatchewan Conservative Party convention here, Hamilton said the CCF party's "thinking is based on a philosophy that arose in the disillusionment of the industrial revolution in Europe."

"Their whole thinking is based on a pessimistic premise, disapproved in history and has no connection with the changing needs and aspirations of people in a very dynamic civilization which can be ours in North America," he told a gathering of 12,000 delegates. Hamilton said Saskatchewan voters had wanted a change in provincial government for several years, but that they would not vote Liberal.

Alexander Suffers Acute Heart Attack

OTTAWA (UPI) — Former Canadian governor-general Earl Alexander was resting in hospital last night following an "acute" heart attack.

A medical bulletin said the 66-year-old field marshal's condition was "serious but not critical." He was admitted to hospital late Monday.

Alexander had complained of pains after returning last Thursday from a six-day duck-hunting expedition at Long Point on Lake Erie near Port Rowan Ont.

Maj.-Gen. Harry Letson, Alexander's host, who had accompanied him in the expedition, suggested a doctor be called in.

Alexander was examined by Dr. C. B. Peirce, his personal physician during his 1946-52 term as governor-general.

It was the first time Alexander had been in hospital since First World War.

The Alexanders were here as British delegates to the English-Speaking Union's world conference under way here.

Protests Expected

Death Mines Shut Down

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (UPI) — The two coal mines here, rocked by disaster in two years, will not be reopened, it was learned Tuesday.

There was no immediate word from the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation officials who previously have avoided any statement on this subject.

A violent underground upheaval Thursday trapped 93 men in No. 2 Colliery. All are believed to be dead.

The search for bodies continued at an agonizingly slow pace today. A great barrier of rock still entombed 72 miners. Thirty-nine men died as a result of an explosion in No. 4 Colliery two years ago. The mine was never reopened.

The Canadian Press learned reliably that No. 2 lost $400,000 in the first seven months of this year and there was some consideration earlier about the possibility of closing it at year-end.

It is expected that there will be protests from the 900 miners, the town itself and union leaders, all of whom have indicated they don't think the workings should be abandoned.

B.C. Medical Plan Hinted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Health Minister Martin threw out an indirect hint Tuesday that some form of medical cost protection is planned by the provincial government.

He made it plain, however, that any medical scheme would not constitute socialized medicine.

"We favor the step-by-step approach to the matter of medical care," he told the annual convention of the B.C. Hospitals' Association.

The minister said the government would proceed with "slow, step-by-step implementation of proven programs at the rate we are able to proceed." But he added, government principles govern the preservation of the doctor and patient relationship.

Mr. Martin also warned that the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service would collapse unless costs are held in check.

To this statement there was a sharp rebuttal from President L. F. C. Kirby of the association.

Hospitals costs will continue to rise, said Mr. Kirby, unless the advance of medicine is halted.

Mr. Martin said he had been reading up on Britain's National Health Service. The British plan took over the hospitals and now doctors are all part of the government payroll, he said.

"We in the provincial government could never accept this approach,"

"We are convinced the best approach to a program of hospital insurance is the responsibility of the area concerned."

"I believe that our program here in B.C. is a much better program, although I certainly do not suggest that there are no areas left for improvement."

Still discussing the British plan the minister stressed that "one aspect particularly is something we in British Columbia would never accept—that is the placing of hospitals, doctors, pharmacists, etc., on the government payroll."

Conciliation Next for Bakers?

Contract Rejected

Union representatives of 70 made by Canadian Bakeries, Victoria bakery workers have McGavin Bakeries and Weston rejected a new contract offer.

The offer was rejected Monday at a union-management meeting. Fred Lister, union financial secretary and business agent, said last night.

The union is seeking a $20 a week, across-the-board increase. The bakeries will be given "a few days to make the next move," he said, after which the union will call in a government conciliation officer if no agreement is reached.

The contract expires Friday. South Africa's total of cattle was estimated at 11,700,000 in 1954.

Flyers' Strong Defence Shuts Out Cougars, 4-0

By GARTH WILTON

Edmonton Flyers, striking for two quick goals early in the first period, threw up a strong defence for goaltender Dennis Riggins to hand the Victoria Cougars a 4-0 defeat and move into first place in the eastern division of the Western Hockey League.

Completely dominating play in the first and third periods, looked like winners all the way in a listless game witnessed by 2,290 fans at Memorial Arena.

But the well-earned victory was a costly one for the Edmonton club. Metro Prystai, one of hockey's real hard-luck guys, suffered a broken leg late in the second period when he took a check from Cougar defenseman Don McLeod. Prystai, who broke the same leg last year, likely will be lost to the Flyers for the rest of the season.

Edmonton's strong defence corps, led by former National Leaguer Bud MacPherson, kept the Cougars from making too many scoring bids.

THIRD SHUTOUT

Riggins, posting his third shut-out of the season, was called upon to make only 15 saves.

Kwong Might Retire

EDMONTON (CP)—Normie Kwong said Tuesday he is considering retirement from football at the end of this season and added: "At this time I am not discussing next season with anyone."

Kwong, the China Clipper who has been one of the stars of the Western Interprovincial Football Union for 11 years, said he knows nothing about a reported business deal under which he would join British Columbia Lions in Vancouver next year.

He said in an interview speculation about his move to Vancouver may have been based on a remark he made recently to a person he thought was a director of the B.C. Lions.

BEING DIPLOMATIC

"I was trying to be diplomatic," Kwong said. "When he asked me if I'd like to play in Vancouver I said, 'Sure I'd love to.' I wasn't trying to get a job, I just trying to be polite."

Kwong also denied a statement attributed to him that he was getting "tired of this town."

He operates a laundry and dry cleaning firm in Calgary.

With the exception of the second period, when they controlled their share of the play but couldn't finish off their passing plays, the Cougars could never get an effective offence started.

Forward Al Nicholson, Victoria's best offensive threat, came closest to spoiling Riggins' shutout when he cut in from right wing and blasted a rising drive off the goalpost in the second period.

BIG EVENING
Jerry Melnyk enjoyed a profitable evening for the Flyers, figuring in all four Edmonton goals.

The smooth-skating centre got his club off to a fast start by bouncing a backhand off Marcel Pelletier's arm at the 31-second mark of the first period.

He drew an assist as defenseman Dave Anadio scored his first goal in professional hockey just less than a minute later.

After the scoreless second period, Melnyk worked loose in the corner and fed a pass to Murray Oliver for Flyers' third goal at 5:09 of the third period. He added the final goal midway through the period, taking a double relay from Warren Hynes and Gene Achtmeier before beating Pelletier with a low, screened drive.

TWO BREAKAWAYS

Cougars got a fine goaltendering chore from Marcel Pelletier, who turned aside 35 drives, including a couple of breakaway bids by Ray Kinasevich.

Pelletier received good support from the Cougar defence, especially rookie Don McLeod, who broke up several dangerous scoring thrusts as the five-wheeling Flyers enjoyed a big territorial advantage.

Cougars' next home game is next Wednesday, when they host Saskatoon Quakers.

Harvey Rejoins Montreal As Ankle Bone Mended

MONTREAL (CP)—Defenceman Doug Harvey, injured Oct. 12, skated again Tuesday and was reported likely to rejoin his Montreal Canadiens teammates when they play Chicago Black Hawks here Saturday. Harvey suffered a chipped and cracked ankle bone in a game against Boston Bruins.

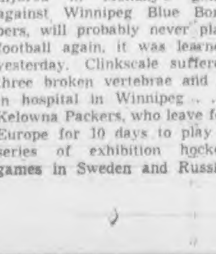

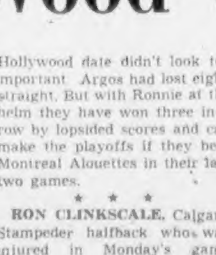

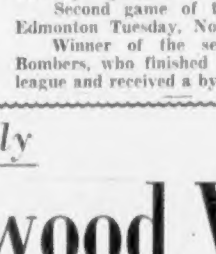

Rough Reception at Flyer Goal

Rugged Edmonton defence is vividly displayed as Flyer rookie Dave Anadio uses his stick and legs to check Cougar forward Al Nicholson who got rare close-in shot at goalie Dennis Riggins. Flyer blueliner Bud MacPherson (2) comes in to clear rebound. Edmonton won, 4-0. (Colonist photo by Bud Kinsman.)

New Chicago Lineup Ties Canadiens, 5-5

up with a brilliant new forward CHICAGO—Coach Rudy Pilon shuffled his Chicago Black Hawks here last night and came combination that sparked the Hawks to a 5-5 tie with the front-running Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League.

Centie, Bobby Hull, Eric Nesterenko and Ron Murphy staged a furious rally in the final six minutes of the game, scoring three unanswered goals to give the Hawks the tie and snap their four-game losing streak.

The drive started at 14:05.

with the Hawks trailing, 5-2.

Murphy scored on a pass play with Hull and Nesterenko, then made it 5-4 on an identical play.

40 seconds later, Hull got the tying goal at 17:19, with both of his linemates drawing assists.

Black Hawks, who were fined $100 apiece for indifferent play the last time they met the Canadiens, appeared on the way to another pay cut last night. They built up a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Dollard St. Laurent and Hull, then blew wide open to fall behind, 3-2, before they got untracked again.

SCORED TWICE

Henri Richard and Bernie Geoffrion each scored twice for the Canadiens to take over the NHL scoring lead with 13 points each, one more than Maurice Richard and Jean Beliveau. The Rocket drew one assist last night and Beliveau set up two goals.

The tie moved the Canadiens six points in front of the pack. Black Hawks are tied for second with Detroit, Boston and New York.

Jacques Plante made 32 saves for the Canadiens compared to 22 for Glenn Hall in the Chicago nets.

AT THE 19th

With Harry Young

Bill Wakeham showed some of the fighting spirit that won him the Canadian junior championship a year ago when he sank that tough last-hole slanting putt at Victoria Golf Club Sunday.

If it had not gone down, the new buttons partnership of Johnnie Merriman and Wakeham would not have surmounted the first defence.

As it is they have to face a replay next Sunday—also at Victoria—against a team of Fred and Freddie Painter.

Because the open buttons do not change venue because of the replay, the junior buttons will also stay at Victoria this week. In this case new holders Al Manson and Bill Carlow of the home club will meet J. McColi Jr., and Roy Chappell of Gorge Vale.

His many friends in Victoria golfing circles will be sorry to hear that Leo Derman is to be hospitalized for an operation next week.

Leo does a fine job of work not only as secretary of the Gorge Vale Golf Club, but as secretary of the Victoria District Committee.

He keeps the game going smoothly in these parts and we all wish him a speedy recovery.

Three comparatively new members played ducks and drakes with the Gorge Vale par in the Carmichael Cup on Sunday.

Winner was B. Browning whose 80 over 21, gave him 13 under par 59. Runner up was E. Dye 94-32—62 and third V. Atkinson 90-27—63. Fourth was E. Groom 90-25—65.

The low gross was 70 shot by Roy Chappell, and runner up Joe Briggs with 75.

Jim Ferguson and Jim Moore of Uplands are still holders of the city senior buttons. They beat C. Robertson and Bill Kempston at Gorge Vale, one up, and now are due to meet C. N. Montague and Basil Porritt at Uplands.

Incidentally Charlie Smith, secretary of the Vancouver Island Senior Golfers Association is now in charge of the senior buttons arrangements.

He is anxious for some of the members of his association to team up and issue challenges for the handsome lapel adornments. At the moment the challengers

GEORGE WALTER FAREY

Another Safe Driver

Courtesy and Good Sense

Importance and value of courtesy on the highway is appreciated by no one more than by people who earn their living behind the wheel of a vehicle. Any one of them can tell stories of simple acts of thoughtfulness which prevented serious accidents. Not surprisingly, then, one of this group has been "tabbed" as this week's courteous driver.

He is George Walter Farey, 2803 Admirals Road, who drives an airline bus regularly between Victoria and Patricia Bay Air port.

Sunday police had an eye on him, and noticed that on his run he stuck strictly to posted speed limits in the various zones through which he drove. Moreover, he yielded right-of-way to other vehicles when common sense, rather than any legal right, indicated this was the best course to follow.

His good driving has won for Mr. Farey two tickets to a home game of the Victoria Cougars, and later he will receive a "good driver's" certificate signed by the chief of police.

This selection is part of a campaign designed to prove that acts of courtesy build records of safety. The campaign is sponsored jointly by the police departments of Greater Victorias, Woodward Stores (Victorias) Ltd., Engleby Ltd., the

Victoria Hockey Club and The Daily Colonist.

Britain Decade Ahead

Nuclear Official Says U.S. A-Power Program Lagging

HALIFAX (CP)—Britain is 10 years ahead of the United States in the development of commercial nuclear power, says Sir Claude Gubb, British industrialist and chairman of the Nuclear Power Plant Co. of Newcastle-on-Tyne.

He told an audience of engineers here that the U.S. has only now reached the stage of a nuclear power plant was

"a high capital cost, low fuel cost animal."

Nuclear plants were essential to Britain's future for her coal resources were declining rapidly.

The British power expert threw cold water on the idea that Canada can expect a uranium boom from nuclear developments. Uranium, once a scarce material, now was being mined in many parts of the world. Purchasers could be choosy and look for the best price.

But he thought Canada might build up a profitable market for enriched uranium, a material needed when demineralized water is used as a moderator in nuclear reactors.

The big problem was capital cost, preferably abandoned—perhaps $150,000,000. If the mine workings,
